Decades of snowmobile history

Thirty treasured vintage snowmobiles built between 1965 and 1983 were lined up in Elk Point's Iron Horse Trail staging area on Saturday, February 19 for the Elk Point TrailRiders' show and shine, before heading down the trail to Lindbergh for the rally portion of the day.

Elk Point TrailRiders reached their optimistic goal of hosting 30 vintage snowmobiles at their show, shine and rally on February 19. Good weather and surprisingly good trail conditions helped to make the event a success.

Sleds ranged from a 1964

Skidoo Chalet to a 1983 Yamaha, with 10 manufacturers, some no longer in the snowmobile business, represented in the lineup at the Elk Point Iron Horse Trail staging area. Owners proudly displayed their prized possessions to admiring visitors during the late morning before most of them headed off down the trail to Lindbergh and beyond.

Viewers were invited to vote for their favorite machines, with Mike Williams receiving the most votes for his gleaming green 1971 Ski Roule Diablo. Gary Suvak's unique jointed-in-the-middle 1968 Bolens Husky placed second, while Trail Riders president Dale

Staging area partners bring shopping lists, develop a joint vision

By VICKI BROOKER

"We're all here for one common purpose, and just like at Christmas, we all have a shopping list," Elk Point Mayor Parrish Tung said last Tuesday evening, as he met with representatives of groups who wish to share in development of Elk Point's Iron Horse Trail staging area.

Mayor Tung said the town has $45,000 in the bank for the staging area, $33,000 of it from the grant they shared with the Town of St. Paul and County of St. Paul, and $12,000 from Riverland Recreational Trail Society. In addition, the Elk Point TrailRiders Snowmobile Club has received a $20,000 grant to purchase a cabin for the site, "and I understand the County is giving us $9,000."

Riverland president Marvin Bjornstad said "we still haven't sorted out" the $9,000. "We had $18,000 for Ashmont and Elk Point, but then Mallaig and the snowmobile clubs started talking about something at Abilene."

"We're all gathered here to get a vision," Mayor Tung said, adding that once all the stakeholders had listed their ideas, public works superintendent Ron Fraess would coordinate the physical work. "The second stage will be in mid-March, when Ron will tell us what can be done and what will have to wait. Then we can get to work. My wish is to have it all done by July 1."

TrailRiders president Dale Rinas said the original price of the 524 square foot log cabin had been $20,000, but now, with the cheque on the way, the price has risen to $22,000. It is on a foundation at its current site, and will need to be placed on a similar foundation, he added.

"The good thing is, the original owner, Larry Kozicky, will move it for us free of charge. All he needs for that is the plaque left on the door."

Rinas said the group's shopping list also includes a meeting table and chairs, steps on the sides of the veranda, and a keypad door lock. The club would also like a loading ramp, a bulletin board, a picnic shelter and a recognition sign listing the names of sponsors, to be included in development site. Water, sewer and power hookups to the cabin would also be a plus.

Bjornstad asked the Town to check if the staging area's ownership had been transferred. "We may need documentation before we can do anything." He listed work done already, which includes the toilet facilities, staging area sign, site cleanup and hitching rails. What needs to be done now, he said, is lighting, a bridge for access to fuel outlets, reworking of the highway crossing, and a map of the town showing businesses and access information.

Mayor Tung indicated that Fraess will look after the bridge and lighting, which will come out of the $12,000, along with the parking lot,

BSE to babysitting blues: Elk Point 4-H speakers give their views

By VICKI BROOKER

Elk Point 4-H Multi Club members presented well-thought-out speeches on topics ranging from the NHL lockout to same-sex marriage at their annual public speaking competition on Sunday. Three senior members, seven intermediates and four juniors competed for trophies, while nine others presented non-competitive speeches and six members, individually and in groups, opted to show their skills via hands-on presentations.

Junior member Darren Tymofichuk demonstrated the making of balloon- and fan-powered boats in his presentation, "Air Powered Projects" while three members of the St. Paul Bengals football team, seniors Derek Wruth, Adam Zapesocki and Bryant Schnurer, gave the audience the lowdown on "Football."

Chelsea Schnurer called BSE "a strike to the heart of the cattle industry" in her prepared speech and discussed the many ways she has benefited from her 4-H involvement in her impromptu to win the Alberta

Treasury Branch plaque for first place in the senior division.

Amanda Zapesocki placed second for the Servus Credit Union award with a prepared speech on a new program of natural horsemanship and a thought-provoking impromptu on ways to alleviate child poverty.

Michelle Zapesocki with the third senior speaker, sharing anger, disappointment and frustration over the NHL lockout and her career plans to become an animal caretaker.

In the intermediate division, Robyn Ockerman placed first with the advantages and disadvantages of the bar-coded CCIA ear tags and her dreams for a farm filled with animals to win the CJ Petroleum plaque.

Janice Tymofichuk spoke of the important role of STARS air ambulance in "Chain of Survival" and the just-right size of her family to win the Talaca Oilfield Consulting Ltd. Award.

Melissa Frisby, speaking on the Quebec exchange, Katelynn Vallee with an exposé of the "down and dirty side of babysitting," Laryssa Cochrane with thoughts on same-sex marriage and Jessica Wirsta with a run-down on rodeo events, also competed in the intermediate group.

Junior winner Kayla Gibson told of the Six Elk Point men and three from Fishing Lake took part, and "nine out of nine passed, with a 88 percent class average," Stevenson said. He said had been commended by the instructor at Lakeland College's fire school, who told him the course has a usual 80 percent pass rate for in-house training.

The course was held on the first and second weekends of December 2004, with good support from fire chief Ken Palamarek and deputy fire chief Lyle Frisby. Elk Point firefighters Trevor Melnyk, Allan Paley, Robert Smith and Wes Wager were on hand to pick up their certificates, while Peter Danyluk and Dwayne Onyschuk, along with Fishing Lake firefighters Arden Laboucane and Stacy Laboucane and their fire chief Dion Cardinal also successfully completed the course.

Fifteen of Elk Point's 21 firefighters now have successfully completed the vehicle extrication course.

"This was our first cooperative effort with Fishing Lake, and we are going to have more in the future," Stevenson said.

Jarred Vallee, reflecting on his first year in Atom hockey, and Alanna Ocker-

Nicholas Zapesocki, Micheal Wandler, Brett Ockerman, Brittany Houle, Lacy Wandler, Marvin Ockerman, James Braga, Matthew Robinson and Hillary Dallaire presented non-competitive speeches, with Rhonda Wruth and Danielle Scarlett teaming up for a non-competitive presentation.

Judges Laverne Wilson, Jamie Schnurer and Lorne Young provided helpful comments at the conclusion of the speak-off. Wilson noted that junior speakers' "topics were well thought out. There was a great variety and they were very personal."

Schnurer said that "overall, we were really, really impressed."

Young attributed the speakers' success to "kids doing what kids do best: telling us things" and said all the senior speeches were "well researched."

Olga Ockerman, Donna Rudolph, Sheila Thompson, Kelly Burke, Ruth Purdy and Myrna Fox completed the judging team, while Joanne Bepalko and Ellen Seward were tellers and timers and Lucille Smith and Val Gibson were impromptu assistants.

Donna Ockerman was the mistress of ceremonies.

Elk Point Skating Club held their 2005 Skate-a-thon on Family Day, with only 16 skaters taking part. "The kids had more fun this year, but less money was brought in than usual," club spokesperson Lee Ann Wozniak said. With fewer participants, the event was less structured than usual, with several participants taking to the ice for two or more sessions.

Girls who skated the most laps were: age 5 and under - Kaitlyn Fuller (7 laps); age 8-9 - Elizabeth Orr (27 laps); age 10-11 - Natasha Demers (26 laps); age 12 and up - Justyne Wozniak (29 laps).

Boys with most laps were: age 5 and under - Brody Odgaard (11 laps); age 6-7 - Dylan Odgaard (17 laps); age 8-9 - Dustin Demers (20 laps); age 10-11 - tie; Andrew Jenner and Matthew Jenner (23 laps); age 12 and up - Jordyn Wozniak (29 laps); adult - Doug Bassett.

Kaitlyn Fuller, age 4, was the youngest skater, while Elizabeth Orr collected the most pledges (33).

Jordyn Wozniak collected $925 to top the fundraising for a prize of a Nintendo DS, Elizabeth Orr placed second with $561 for a portable DVD player, and Justyne Wozniak was third with $222 for a remote control Hummer. The three were the only participants raising in excess of $200.

Top fundraisers were, right to left, Jordyn Wozniak, $925, Justyne Wozniak, $222 and Elizabeth Orr, $561.

Jonathan Suvak received the award for the oldest sled, while Laurier Dechaine of Mallaig was the oldest rider and Cody Gadowski was the youngest participant.

The winners were announced following a hearty mid-trail barbecue lunch at the Lindbergh staging area, where draws were also made for numerous door prizes donated by Elk Point and St. Paul businesses.

Some riders headed back to Elk Point after the lunch, while others continued on to Heinsburg, taking maximum advantage of the good sledding weather while it was available.

Jonathan Suvak's 1964 Skidoo Chalet was the oldest machine in the show, shine and rally.

Nutrition and wellness go hand in hand

There is an old saying: "You are what you eat." Let me add to that saying, "You are what you eat, exercise and do." The question you get to ask yourself is: "Am I happy with what I eat, exercise and do?" If not, am I willing to look at changing? By thinking about and answering all of these questions, you are really measuring your own "wellness." March is a good month to do all of this. They say, "March comes in like a lion and goes out like a lamb," or vice versa. If that is the case, maybe we need to look at our nutrition and wellness and go forward like a lion or a lamb. It doesn't matter. As long as we get there is what counts.

World Day of Prayer at Elk Point United

By REV. JOPE LANGEJANS

Elk Point United Church

World Day of Prayer offers us a moment to reflect upon and affirm our faith in Jesus Christ, to share in the community of Christians around the world, and to commit to working for social justice.

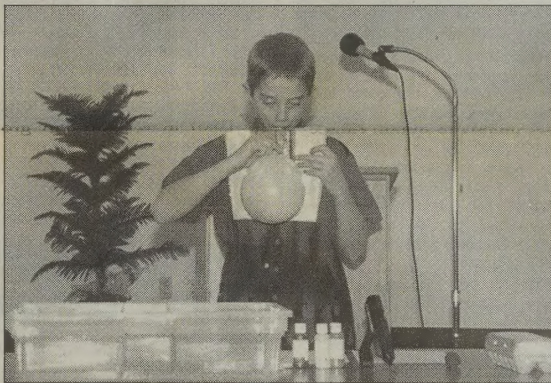

Each year, women from a different country write a service which reflects their social concerns through a Biblical lens.

On the first Friday in March, Christians of all denominations in more than 2,000 communities across Canada and in more than 170 countries come together to pray and take action in solidarity with the people of that country.

In light of this, some of the citizens of Elk Point and area have expressed their need to have such a service happen here.

We thank the women of Poland for sharing their service with us, "Let Our Light Shine," and invite each and every one of you to come to Elk Point United Church on Friday, March 4 at 7 p.m. and emit your light as we all reflect upon our solidarity with all of humankind in the world.

Staging area

"We will look after the $2,000 for the cabin," he assured Rinas.

New Chamber of Commerce president Sandy Smith outlined plans to obtain and move in a railroad station, to be refurbished and used as a tourist information centre. This would likely be located at the east end of the staging area, and Smith suggested that the planned bridge be expanded to handle large recreational vehicles turning in to the site from Railway Avenue.

"We may have to go to the site and visualize where everything will be before we have the meeting," Mayor Tung said.

"There's still room for other projects," Bjornstad assured the group.

Riverland secretary Sheila Thompson suggested a line of trees on the south side of the hitching rails as a pleasing addition. Other landscaping is also planned for the staging area.
